

We are very pleased to welcome you again to our museums.

We would like to make your stay in our municipal museums, here specifically the Palais Papius, as pleasant as possible despite the Corona pandemic.

The number of visitors must therefore be limited so that safety distances can be maintained. Until further notice, we do not offer any escorts through the exhibitions and do not provide media guides. A visit to Palais Papius is possible by guiding the limited number of visitors or visitor groups through the rooms by a security guard. With a smartphone and your own headphones you can use our audio guide to the collection Lemmers-Danforth by downloading the smartphone app via the QR code available in the entrance area. The collection is open to visitors by appointment.

Please observe the following rules in order not to endanger yourself or others:

- Wearing a mouth-nose mask is mandatory.
- Please keep a minimum distance of 2 meters to other people. This also applies to visitors in the entrance and exit areas, in the foyer, in front of the ticket office, in the exhibition and in the toilets and washrooms.
- Please minimize personal contact (also with the supervisory staff).
- Please also pay attention to the information boards on hygiene in the toilets and instructions on distance rules in the ticket office area and in the exhibition rooms.
